Measurements:

- Pumpkin Pie (base) 5-1/2" x 8 1/2"
- Basic Black (torn layers) 5" x 4"

Instructions:

1. Stamp the house image on Whisper White cardstock using Basic Black ink. Cut out the house using scissors. You can omit the chimney, like I did, to make it easier to cut out. Color in the windows using the Crushed Curry marker.
2. Die cut a circle from Crushed Curry cardstock using the Layering Circles Framelits. I used the circle equivalent to 2 5/8" wide. Stamp the largest collage of bat images on the circle using Basic Black ink.
3. Using the 5" x 4" piece of Basic Black cardstock, begin to tear the paper, towards you, to create strips. Don't worry about being precise as the unevenness of the tears and depth add to the character of your finished 'mountain'. Tear the first strip straight across so that it will be 4" wide when finished. Tear the next strip wider, ripping it shorter than the first layer. Repeat this process until you have a small piece resembling a rock/cliff for the top as shown.
4. Place, do not adhere, the first long strip of Basic Black cardstock on the Pumpkin Pie card base. This will give you an idea of where to stamp the tree. If necessary, use a pencil and make a small mark for placement.

Stamp the tree image onto the Pumpkin Pie card base using Basic Black ink.

5. Adhere the first long strip of Basic Black cardstock to the bottom of the card base, leaving the top, backside free of adhesive so you can layer the next strip behind this one. Continue layering the Basic Black strips in the same manner creating layers of to resemble a hill. Remember to leave room for the Crushed Curry circle (moon). When you reach the top, adhere the house image using Dimensionals, again, leaving room to adhere the moon. Adhere the rock/cliff piece of Basic Black cardstock as shown.

6. Adhere the Crushed Curry circle, tucking it slightly behind the house as shown.
